

Personalia 2006

We herewith present Monatshefte's annual issue of Personalia. Personalia contains information concerning staff members and departmental structures for the academic year 2006–2007 and information concerning student enrollments and degrees granted for the academic year 2005–2006. Personalia listings are prepared from material submitted by departments. Monatshefte cannot be responsible for factual errors in the submitted materials. The deadline for returning this year's Personalia forms was May 31; reminders were sent out after that date by email and telephone, and we included information that came in as late as mid-September. Departments that did not submit new information before we went to press are still listed—with an asterisk preceding the listing—using last year's information, but deleting statistics, leave and visitor information, and italicized names. Departments that were asterisked last year and did not respond again this year were dropped from this year's issue.

As of this issue, Personalia is 69 years old. Personalia made its debut in Monatshefte volume 29 (1937), where—spread out between the November and December issues—44 institutions were listed. In 1938 that number dropped to 29, but rose to 72 in 1939. These first few issues were rather descriptive, including not only a list of the faculty, but also a survey of the sorts of graduate seminars offered. Personalia has been a part of Monatshefte ever since—with the exception of 1943, when the Personalia section was not included.

The format and contents of Personalia have changed dramatically over the course of nearly seven decades. Early sections listed full-time faculty, changes in faculty, the number of students (both at the undergraduate and graduate levels) in the department, as well as graduate students working toward Ph.D. degrees who would likely finish during the next year and hence be available for teaching positions. Only years later were completed dissertations listed. The 1942 issue, as well as several other Personalia listings of that period, listed faculty members on leave to the army or other government agencies. By the late 1940s Personalia had grown to cover over 100 institutions; in 1968 it listed over 200. The Personalia issue for 1957 introduced what became the standard format for listing programs (a two-column layout listing faculty by rank), but it wasn't until 1973 that the type of department (e.g. German or Foreign Language) and the highest degree offered were listed. Canadian programs were first listed in 1964, and for a few years in the 1960s other “overseas” schools (e.g. the University of Auckland, New Zealand; the University of Queensland, Australia; and the University of Witwatersrand, South Africa) were also a part of Personalia.

The 1970s saw a variety of special surveys: German Cultural Studies (1976), GDR Studies (1977), Women in German (1978), Graduate Programs (1979). Then, in 1980, Personalia established its current format, including the departmental statistics and the statistical summary, the necrology, the listing of new hires, etc.

The code following the departmental address designates departmental structure and the highest degree offered in German in that department: G = German (Germanic) only or with minor languages; G+ = German plus another language not considered minor, usually Russian; L = German section of a (foreign) language (literature) department; O = no degree obtainable in German; B = bachelor's degree; M = master's degree; D = doctor's degree. If a + follows the degree designation, a higher degree is obtainable outside the regular program.

Names given in italics identify visitors (followed by the parenthetical notation [vi]) and new appointments. Refer to special listings for information concerning temporary or permanent status and regular or former affiliation. Again, the accuracy of this information depends on the submissions by the departments.

An asterisk following a name indicates the chairperson or head of the department, including (foreign) language departments. A double asterisk following a name indicates the representative, if any, of the German section of a (foreign) language department.

Departmental members on leave are designated by the parenthetical notation (lv), followed by a semester (Roman) or quarter (Arabic) designation. If these designations are absent, leave is for the entire year. The statistical table at the conclusion of a German department listing gives the following information for the preceding year:

BC	BA/BS awarded in culture
BE	German BA/BS majors enrolled
BG	BA/BS awarded in German Studies
BL	BA/BS awarded in linguistics/language
BLi	BA/BS awarded in literature
BM	German BA/BS minors awarded
BO	BA/BS awarded in other German concentrations
BR	German BA/BS minors registered
BT	BA/BS awarded in teaching
MAw	MAAs awarded in German
ME	MA students enrolled
MT	MAAs awarded in teaching
PAw	Ph.D.s awarded
PE	Ph.D. students enrolled
PM	Ph.D. minors awarded
PR	Ph.D. minors registered
PX	preliminary examinations passed
SF	support as fellows (including outside support, e.g. DAAD)
SO	support by other means (e.g. partial scholarships, tuition remission)
SP	support as project or research assistants
ST	support as teaching assistants

Departments without statistical lines either had none to report or did not submit them.

Visitors

The institution given in parentheses is the visitor's regular affiliation. Unless otherwise noted, the appointment is for the academic year. Semesters are noted by Roman, quarters by Arabic numerals. As far as possible, we have avoided listing appointments that are "visiting" in name only, i.e. in cases where the colleague has no regular affiliation elsewhere.

Summary

The statistical summary includes only those departments listed in the preceding Personalia section that sent statistics in on time, i.e. all departments except the asterisked ones. We count the asterisked departments only in the total number of departments (Table I) and for our statistics concerning faculty members (Table II). Departments that have no active faculty members have been removed from the listings of individual departments. We have included them in Table I in the total count of reporting departments, indicating that their faculty head count is zero.

TABLE I: Departments

U.S.	377	34	247	40	56	1	290	58	28
Canada	27	2	12	5	8	0	18	7	2
Total	404	36	259	45	64	1	308	65	30
2005	386	36	246	42	65	3	291	63	28
2004	409	45	259	45	60	6	303	69	31
2003	427	49	272	46	60	4	325	67	31

For the first time in several years, our numbers for institutions granting degrees in German are up. This year's Personalia list includes a total of 404 departments, 18 more departments than last year's. A switch to email as our preferred data-collection format several years ago in conjunction with a general desire to conduct business via email may have facilitated this increase. In addition to a greater response rate among schools continuously listed in Personalia, several institutions which previously had been deleted from the listings were reinstated this year (26 in total). Many schools, however, did not make statistical information available to us for publication. Our additional coverage is among departments which offer no degree in German. Only one program is listed as having no active faculty (Seattle University).

Regrettably, 66 departments (63 in the U.S. and 3 in Canada) are asterisked this year because they failed to submit new information. This means that our statistical survey is based on 83.7% of the departments listed, or a total of 338 departments (404 minus 66). Last year, 71 departments were asterisked. Of these, only 8 failed again to respond, and have now been deleted from our listings. The other 63 appear this year with updated staff listings and statistical information.

We continue to encourage departments to participate in our listings and surveys. Personalia represents our attempt to keep track of the whereabouts of our colleagues and of trends and developments within the profession in North America. We are doing what we can, but we cannot gather our information without the help of others.

Again, we thank all institutions who did respond for helping us keep and publish the record of our profession.

Table II counts all active faculty members. Emeriti, retirees, and visitors are not counted; faculty on leave is. This year we report an increase in individual faculty and staff listings compared to last year (1444 as opposed to 1363). This is consistent with the increase in the total number of institutions reporting information this year (see Table I). For Table II we have lumped together professors with adjunct professors, associate professors with adjunct associate professors, and so on; we have made no attempt to identify part-timers and pro-rate their appointments. We urge caution when dealing with these statistics, as our statistical methods are not pure, and we remind our readers once again that the colleges and universities who returned our questionnaires this year constitute a somewhat different sample from that of previous years.

A comparison of this year's faculty statistics with those of the last several years seems to suggest some trends worth noting. Of interest are trends concerning (1) the relative numbers of those in the upper ranks (associate professor and professor) and the lower ranks (assistant professor and "other"—for the most part lecturers and instructors), and (2) the relative numbers of men and women in the profession. We point to the following:

The number of faculty in the upper ranks seems to be stabilizing around 60%: five years ago 63% of the faculty and staff listed were at the upper ranks; four years ago it was 61%; three years ago it was slightly over 58%; two years ago it rose to just under 61%, where it again remained last year; this year the number sits just above 59%.

The gender gap in the upper ranks, which has decreased over the last five years, continues to do so: women comprised 33% of the total in 1999, 2000, and 2001, 37% of the total both four and three years ago, 38% of the total two years ago, almost 39% of the total last year, and make up almost 40% of the total this year.

The gender gap in the lower ranks has decreased just over 1% since last year, with women now comprising 62.7% of the total. Women comprised 63% of the total six years ago, 64% five years ago, 60% four years ago, 63% three years ago, 61% two years ago, and 64% last year.

The closing of the gender gap in our profession is, however, most clearly expressed in the total number of women vs. men in the field. This year we see a .5% increase in the total number of women, resulting in near equality: 49.17% of our total listings are women, and 50.83% are men.

TABLE III: Promotions

	Promotions to
	Professor			Associate Professor
	F	M	Total	F	M	Total
Total
2006	8	16	24	19	17	36
2005	7	9	16	15	16	31
2004	10	18	28	14	16	30
2003	7	16	23	13	6	19

Table III shows promotions to the ranks of professor and associate professor during the academic year 2005–2006. The numbers are encouraging—a grand total of 60 in both categories together; the highest number in four years. There were more promotions this year to the rank of professor than the last three years, and the number of promotions to associate professor is the highest in a decade. 45% of the total promotions went to women, 55% to men.

TABLE IV: New Appointments

	Permanent			Temporary			Grand Total
	F	M	Total	F	M	Total
Total
2006	21	23	44	37	30	57	101
2005	15	16	31	37	22	59	90
2004	23	24	47	50	33	83	130
2003	20	16	36	52	24	76	112

There were a total of 101 new appointments this year: 44 to tenured or tenure-track positions, 57 to temporary positions. This is an increase from the hiring slump experienced last year. This is likely to be attributed to the increased number of schools reporting information for this year. The percentage of tenured or tenure-track appointments among the total number is also higher than it has been in recent years. This year it was 44%, up dramatically from 34% last year. The numbers of men and women securing both permanent positions is relatively equal this year. However, the number of women receiving temporary positions is greater that of men, a trend that has remained steady over the last four years.

TABLE V: Enrollments

	Undergraduate		M.A.	Graduate

Total	4341	3140	494	739	13
2005	4060	2746	440	732	6
2004	4491	2887	547	732	5
2003	3555	2509	425	736	1

Because of differences in our overall coverage, the changes in enrollment statistics are difficult to interpret. Our totals this year are higher than last year for all undergraduate enrollments. We also show an increase in enrollment in graduate M.A. programs, while enrollments in graduate Ph.D. programs have remained steady (graduate Ph.D. programs tend to be the most consistent in returning our surveys). The numbers given for Canadian institutions are also all higher this year, with graduate Ph.D. enrollments showing the smallest change (48 this year as opposed to 45 last year). The percentage of minors among our total undergraduate enrollment (majors plus minors) remains large, and continues to grow steadily: this year, registered minors represent 42% of the total compared with 40% for last year.

The number of students completing B.A. degrees is higher than last year. The number of M.A. degrees awarded is also similar to last year and the number of Ph.D. degrees awarded this year has decreased after last year's slight bump. As with the enrollment figures, these numbers are difficult to interpret because of changes in our overall coverage.

This year our figures indicate that 89% of the graduate students who receive support hold teaching assistantships, project/research assistantships, or fellowships, up from 88% last year. Although this statistic does fluctuate, it has remained fairly constant for the last decade. Again, we urge caution when interpreting these numbers, as not all departments offering graduate support provided us with statistics.
